1. One department of the Ministry of Mail and Communications is known to other ministry officials as Section XI. It is responsible for:
 - a. The ministry's war plans and civil defense organization
 - b. All liaison between the ministry and the Ministry of National Defense, and
 - c. "the military and political aspects of the fulfilment of Soviet commissions".

25X1

Its civil defense responsibilities include the co-ordination of civil defense for all factories, railroads, airfields and harbors in Hungary.

2. Section XI is headed by a Moscow-educated Hungarian named Ferenc Janesik. The section occupies the third floor of the MAV (Hungarian State Railroads) building in Budapest, but is physically isolated from other departments in the same building. No official employed outside the section is allowed to enter without previously arranging an appointment by telephone.
